Storm Eunice

Mooring holders are advised that the Met Office has issued a rare Red Weather Warning as Storm Eunice is expected to bring extremely strong winds and continued disruption for much of the UK on Friday.

The Red Weather Warning for wind covers southwest coastal areas of the UK, where the most significant gusts in exposed areas could be in excess of 90mph from early Friday morning.

Further inland and within the wider Amber Warning area, gusts will still be significant and damaging for many, with 70-80mph gusts possible.

With such severe weather impacting the UK, mooring holders should remain up to date with the latest warnings and also ensure that their vessels are securely moored or where possible taken out of the water for the duration of the storm.
